About This Game

At the heart of our Galaxy, an advanced civilization of which we know nothing had built the biggest, most beautiful starship ever, the Starship Titanic. Majestic and luxurious, its interior resembles a mixture of the Ritz, the Chrysler building, Tutankhamen's tomb and Venice. Starship Titanic is a technological marvel. And it cannot possibly go wrong.

In theory. Seconds into its maiden voyage it crashes into hyperspace, vanishes... and collides with your house.

Bewildered, you find your way aboard, and just as you are gazing at its awe-inspiring interior, the ship takes off again and heads deep into space. You are stranded. But you are not alone...

The ship is inhabited by a crew of malfunctioning robots and a semi-deranged parrot. You discover that you can communicate with them, a feat that is made possible by SpookiTalk, the games proprietary interactive language engine. You can chat with any of the robot characters-Fentible the distinguished Doorbot, Nobby the hypochondriac Liftbot, or Fortilian Bantoburn O'Perfluous the outrageously convivial Barbot. Talk to them, interrogate them. Give them orders. They will listen to you, answer you and, if they happen to feel like it, obey you. Sometimes.

To begin with you are a third-class passenger, and you quickly find yourself in the grip of one of the most powerful forces known to man-the desire for a free upgrade. As you move up to second and, at last, to first class, more and more of the ship becomes accessible to you, and more and more of its mysteries are revealed. What has happened here? What terrible events occurred the night before the launch? Who is the mysterious Titania whose brooding statues dominate the ship? Can you solve a series of increasingly bizarre and surreal puzzles., unlock the central mystery and return to Earth before the parrot drives you finally and irrevocably mad?

Talking to the BarBot
Have you found Titania's Vision Center yet?
Hey barman! I'm getting bored with my brain. Got anything that will fry it? Ha ha! Ha ha! Squawk!

Chat-O-Mat

That's great! I can take a little time off, right away. And I see you're SuperGalactic Traveler class, so I guess you can find your own way to your room. The door's over there, the Elevator's around someplace. Relax! Stay cool! Enjoy!

Chat-O-Mat

26 which you will reach by Elevator 2 Don't get drunk in the bar, don't annoy the musicians, don't fiddle with the Pellerator, don't touch the artwork, and if you go up to the promenade deck don't scuff the woodwork! There you are. And it's better than you deserve.

An oldie but goodie. I loved this game as a kid, although I wasn't really old enough to understand and solve the puzzles - I just liked talking to the robots! As I got older, the CDs wouldn't run on more modern computers so I was quite sad that I wasn't able to play anymore. I was absolutely delighted when Starship Titanic became available to play on Steam - and now I actually play properly and solve the puzzles! The setting and the characters are all wonderfully bizarre, as you would expect from something created by Douglas Adams, with hilarious dialogue voiced by Terry Jones, John Cleese and Adams himself. If you're an Adams fan - this is for you. Don't forget to press the button!
